Lesson 6: Everyday Situations

Module 2 | 45 minutes | Polite requests | Grades 3–6 · ages 8–11

Objective: Use polite requests to order food, ask for help, talk on the phone and buy something at a shop, and act out a role-play dialogue.

Success criteria

- I can make polite requests with could I, may I and please.
- I can order food and ask the price in a shop.
- I can start and end a phone call politely.
- I can ask a trusted grown-up for help.

Key vocabulary

- request: Asking for something.
- polite: Kind and respectful.
- Could I have…?: A polite way to ask for something.
- excuse me: A polite way to get someone's attention.
- message: Information you ask someone to pass on.
- role play: Acting out a real situation with a partner.

You will need

- Projector or screen share with Kitabash (lesson video, activities)
- Devices: 1 per learner (laptop, tablet or phone); a microphone helps for speaking tasks
- Printed worksheet, paper and pencil
- Project files: l06-practice-sheet-everyday-situations.md, l06-teacher-script.md

Timed lesson plan (45 min)

Time	Stage	What happens
5 min	Warm-up game	Polite or bossy? Thumbs up/down for requests read in different voices; volunteers fix the bossy ones.
5 min	Watch + thumbs check	Play the video. Thumbs: "It is OK to say 'Who is this?' first on the phone." (Down.)
5 min	Act-it-out demo	Teacher and volunteers act out the restaurant, shop and phone dialogues with props.
7 min	Game time	Situation match, Order the dialogue, then the polite-or-bossy sort as a quick competition.
8 min	Breakout: write the role-play	Pairs choose a situation card, write a six-line dialogue with a twist, and rehearse twice, swapping parts.

10 min	Show-and-tell: role-play theatre	Pairs perform their role-play for the class. Audience guesses the situation and spots every please and thank you.
5 min	Probe + exit ticket	At the station (poll), then write the phone message dialogue. Exit ticket in the chat.

Unplugged warm-up

Polite or bossy? (5 min): the teacher reads requests in different voices — “Pass the salt!” / “Could you pass the salt, please?” Learners give a thumbs up for polite and a thumbs down for bossy. Then volunteers turn a bossy one into a polite one, using their kindest voice.

Teaching the idea

Learners practise polite request patterns for four real situations: restaurant, shop, phone and asking for help. The core language is could I / can I / may I / I’d like + please, excuse me to get attention, and thank you to finish. Model each dialogue with a volunteer, then let pairs write and act out their own role-play with a small “twist” so they learn to respond, not just recite. Safety: when lost, ask a trusted grown-up (a parent, teacher, police officer or staff at a counter); on the phone, never give your address to someone you do not know.

Analogy: Please and thank you are like oil in a bicycle chain: everything runs smoothly when you use them.

Live demo: 1) Say “Give me a dosa!” in a bossy voice, then “Could I have a masala dosa, please?” Ask: which would a waiter prefer? 2) Act out the restaurant dialogue with a volunteer as Riya; you are the waiter. 3) Act out the shop dialogue; use a real notebook as a prop and a price tag of ₹40. 4) Act out the phone call with your hand as a phone. 5) Ask: what changes in each situation, and what stays the same? (Please, thank you and excuse me stay the same.)

Questions to ask

Ask	Listen for
How do we make “Give me water” polite?	Could I have some water, please?
What do we say to get someone’s attention politely?	Excuse me.
How do you start a phone call?	Hello, this is [first name]. May I speak to..., please?
How do you ask the price?	How much is it? / How much is this?
Who should you ask for help if you are lost?	A trusted grown-up: a parent, teacher, police officer or staff at a counter.

Differentiation

Support
Give a ready-made dialogue with only two gaps to fill. Let learners hold a prop (a toy phone or notebook) to make it feel real.

Stretch
Add two twists to the dialogue and handle both politely. Try the same dialogue as a very polite robot, then as yourself.

Common misconceptions

Misconception	How to fix it
“Give me one dosa.”	Could I have a dosa, please? / I’d like a dosa, please.
“How much is these?”	How much are these? (more than one) / How much is this? (one)
On the phone: “Who is this?” first	Say who you are first: “Hello, this is Zoya.”
Thinking please is only for grown-ups	Everyone uses please and thank you, with friends too.

Assessment

Use the Code Lab results (auto-checked), the quick checks and the Probe answers. Written answers arrive in your review queue.

Exit ticket
Make this polite: “Give me a pencil.”

Homework
At dinner or at a shop with a grown-up, use one polite request in English (“Could I have..., please?”). Tell the class what happened.

Answer key — Kitabash activities

1. Match each situation to the best polite sentence (perform · matching)

At a restaurant → Could I have a masala dosa, please? · At a shop → How much is this notebook? · On the phone → Hello, this is Kabir. May I speak to Arjun, please? · When you are lost in a mall → Excuse me, could you help me, please? · When someone offers more food you do not want → No, thank you. I'm full.

2. Order the dialogue (perform · ordering)

Order: Waiter: Good evening! What would you like? → Riya: Could I have a masala dosa, please? → Waiter: Of course. Anything to drink? → Riya: A mango lassi, please. → Waiter: Here you are. → Riya: Thank you!

3. Polite or bossy? (perform · categorize)

Polite: Could I have some water, please?, Excuse me, where is the library?, May I speak to Riya, please?, I'd like this one, please.
Bossy: Give me water., Where is library? Tell me., Call Riya., I want that. Now.

4. Speak: role-play dialogue (perform · speaking)

Listen for: I started with excuse me or a greeting · I made a request with could I, may I or do you have · I used please · I answered my partner's line · I said thank you at the end · I used a friendly voice and looked at my partner

5. New situation: at the station (probe · multiple choice)

Answer: Excuse me, could you tell us where platform 3 is, please?

6. New situation: leave a message (probe · free response)

Look for: hello, this is, may i, please, message, thank. Example: Hello, this is Aarav. May I speak to Kabir, please? — Sorry, he is not at home. — Could you please give him a message? Please tell him I called to play badminton. — Of course. — Thank you, bye!
